Transportation Pools Planned

Program Planned Has Vital Double Purpose

The Office of Defense Transportation and the United States department of agriculture asked farmers throughout the country to co-operate in a comprehensive program for conservation and more efficient use of farm trucks and automobiles.

Because of the rubber shortage, the limited supply of new vehicles and the increasing scarcity of repair parts, farmers are urged to use their trucks and cars as little as possible.

The two government agencies recommended that farmers not only eliminate unnecessary driving but also form transportation pools to share their vehicles.

For hauling their produce to market and for transporting needed supplies to the farms.

Program's Double Aim.

The program has the double aim of conserving vital equipment and assuring a continuous flow of farm commodities to market.

In a letter to state and county war boards urging the conservation of farm transportation facilities, Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard said: "The department is glad to co-operate in this program to the fullest extent, realizing that attainment of agricultural production goals will be meaningless unless there is assurance that essential farm products, when ready for market, can quickly be brought to processing, storage or consumption centers."

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, said: "Farmers can assist in the nationwide farm transportation program by avoiding trips to market with more than full loads wherever possible, and by making every possible effort to purchase their supplies at times when it will be possible to haul them to their farms on return trips."

Cooperators of farm trucks also are urged to follow the "preventive maintenance plan" of the ODT in order to prolong the life of such equipment as long as possible.

Youths in Britain Flock to Air Force

Training Corps Attracts 165,000 in Single Year

LONDON.—It is disclosed that in one year Britain's pre-service air training corps for boys between 16 and 18 years has reached a total strength of 165,000 cadets. The modern British boy has taken to the air with the same natural enthusiasm as his forefathers took to the sea.

This large total of cadets, who spend at least two evenings a week listening to instructors in local halls and their Saturday afternoons and Sundays going over aircraft factories and even taking flights, does not include tens of thousands of other boys too young to join the ATC but who are receiving a preliminary air training as Boy Scouts and "Junior" ATCs.

Every cadet is a self-appointed "instructor" among his younger fry. His walls are decorated with types of aircraft, and in their presence elderly uniformed airmen have to be wary of their fists.

The rapidly expanding organization now has 1,500 units, 23 of which are university air squadrons, 7,000 commissioned officers and 12,000 civilian instructors. Under the command of Air Commodore John Wickard said: "The department is glad to co-operate in this program to the fullest extent, realizing that attainment of agricultural production goals will be meaningless unless there is assurance that essential farm products, when ready for market, can quickly be brought to processing, storage or consumption centers."

For Home Vacations

LONDON.—In view of travel restrictions, the government has asked every borough council in Greater London to do everything possible to make the city more attractive as a holiday center. The ministry of labor wants every one to remain at home this summer.

Borough councils, rallying to the appeal of the London county council will spend more than $7,000 on summer attractions, including outdoor dances, bands in parks and other public places, including Trafalgar square, special theatre shows and probable opening of movie theaters during the morning. Fairs and exhibitions will be encouraged. Libraries are being asked to stock more fiction. Music and arts groups are being asked to help.

Everything possible will be done to encourage walking, cycling, tennis, golf and bathing, all of which can be enjoyed in and near London as well as at the seaside.

Favors Candidate Twice

ALLBANY, N. Y.—Charles A. Shafer retained his village board seat in the same way he won it by a boy drawing his name from a hat.

Shafer and his opponent, George Kahn, each received 98 votes in a village election. Officials resorted to the ball and hat to break the tie. In 1938, Shafer tied the incumbent candidate, then won on the draw.
